DALLAS COUNTY LAW LIBRARY & AI

The new AI technology has the potential to revolutionize the workplace. In the legal profession, LexisNexis offers Lexis Protégé. Protégé is a personalized AI assistant that is uniquely tailored to each individual user and securely integrated into the LexisNexis ecosystem.

The Law Library is excited to announce that Dallas County legal staff have access to Protégé through their existing accounts. Currently, Protégé is available only to County legal staff but Lexis plans for it to eventually be available across all of the LexisNexis platform.

What can Protégé do?

- Draft full, tailored transactional documents, as well as litigation motions, briefs, and complaints, and check its own work before turning them over to human legal professionals for final review. Documents can be further edited directly in Lexis+ AI or exported to Microsoft Word.
- Suggest legal workflow actions based on the type of documents uploaded (e.g., Draft a Legal Memo, Summarize, Draft an Argument) and dynamically generate follow-up prompts that are personalized to the lawyer's workflow.
- Provide prompt assistance, proactively suggesting refinements to queries to help the user accomplish their goals efficiently.
- Allow users to securely upload and save tens of thousands of legal documents to Protégé Vault. On each Vault, users can perform numerous AI tasks to summarize, draft, research, and more.
- Draft deposition questions based on fact patterns, descriptions of witnesses, and other relevant information.
- Draft discovery documents, including Interrogatories, Request for Production of Documents, and Request for Admissions.
- Generate a graphical timeline of events from uploaded documents.
- Ask questions of or summarize large, complex documents of up to 1 million characters or approximately 300 pages—a 250% increase over previous processing limits.
- Enable users to upload transactional documents and conduct streamlined, systematic analyses with speed and accuracy.
- Review an uploaded motion or argument and find similar motions and arguments in the LexisNexis system to help the user refine their argument, find stronger authority, and identify potential weaknesses.
- Link quotes in litigation filings back to source documentation to confirm accuracy.
