GOVERNANCE

Federal/State Legislative Update: Doug Denton, Homeward Bound

Doug Denton reported that in the new HHSC fiscal budget, they must submit a five percent reduction and there will not be an increase in funding. Organizations will have to seek funding legislatively. Doug remarked that they were there advocating for substance use services, which have only seen a one percent increase in the last eight years. Detoxification and medical services are the most expensive things offered and have seen a 20 percent increase in cost. Locally, we are feeling those effects. They have had to go to philanthropy and other sources to try to fund programs. He stated they will be talking to the other side of the aisle to obtain more funding legislatively. He reported that within the new five-year grant cycle, NTBHA has lost out on funding and will have to adjust going forward. The state recalculated the way they are distributing the funding and are now giving funding to brick and mortar organizations instead of clients needing assistance. HHSC's substance use disorder treatment grant is allocated through NTBHA and since their funding has been cut, Homeward Bound has not received funding and NTBHA has had to absorb costs. Other counties have received funding and are disbursing it to their organizations, but Collin County sent back $1 million dollars to the state that went unused. The funding was intended to go to NTBHA, but as of yesterday, they still hadn't received it. SAMSHA announced they have new priorities, one of which is allowing faith-based treatment organizations to apply for funding. They have $700 million dollars available for some organizations and faith-based organizations are being encouraged to apply. Faith-based organizations are required to have a 501 c (3) designation and licensed evidence-based therapeutic treatment centers are not eligible to apply for these particular grants. Ikenna Mogbo reported that administration has the HUD methodology written in the NOFU that faith-based organizations can apply directly to them for funding and not have to go through the COC. Janie Metzinger stated that both the House and the Senate have Interim charges on homelessness and that she would share them with the group. Rachel Wilson reported that she was just watching an interim charge hearing earlier and Steve Autry was testifying on behalf Dallas County specifically speaking about drop offs and the need for more deflection centers. She also mentioned someone from Meadows Mental Health Institute was also there.

RESOURCES

Shelter Discussions:

Wendy Hardeman stated that as far as shelters are concerned, she is encountering wait lists. She also stated that there are not enough services on the back end to assist clients when they are able to get them into housing. Doug Denton reported that when a person is ready for treatment, we need to make the process for them to get into treatment quicker because they are ready at that exact time for assistance. If people wait or there are no services available, there is a greater potential that those clients will be back out on the streets.

Housing Authority:

Rachel Wilson reported that the Dallas Housing Authority is still in shortfalls and are not issuing any new vouchers.

They are continuing to fund the vouchers that are currently leased up. If they have a Housing Choice Voucher, they can relocate, but they are not issuing any new vouchers. Ikenna Mogbo reported that the project-based vouchers are still with those projects, but their housing voucher allocation funding is gone halfway through the year so new vouchers aren't being issued.

Metrocare: Ikenna Mogbo,
Commissioner Daniel stated and Ikenna Mogbo reported that Metrocare is in a state of flux. He also stated that since Metrocare is the "Parkland" for county behavioral health, they won't go away. He reported that by January 2027, the organization will look dramatically different with some rightsizing and partnership alignments, but the impact on clients should be minimal.

PROJECTS AND INDUSTRY UPDATES
Housing Forward: Rachel Wilson, Housing Forward
Rachel Wilson reported that there wasn't any major change from the last meeting. Their annual obligation for funding from HUD was released a couple of weeks ago. With the NOFU, they are seeing a lot of emphasis placed on faith-based care, emphasis placed on clients applying for assistance outside of the COC, and some limitations on funding for permanent supportive housing. Tier one funding has been reduced to 60% of their operational cost. This has reduced their long-term housing assistance, but this issue is currently being litigated, and they are awaiting the results. They are still working to maximize the funding they currently have. With the current NOFU, they believe they can sustain their current PSH, but they may lose funding for their rapid rehousing projects. She did state that the NOFU has new funding available for transitional housing projects, but they are confident that they will be able to accommodate their neighbors. Ikenna Mogbo reported that new funding has also been allocated to new supportive service projects only. He stated that Metrocare used to have supportive service projects only, but over time they moved away from those projects. With this NOFU, some of their homeless behavioral services are eligible for funding with those grants and he plans to apply for them due to their current financial status and to continuously provide those services to the community.

Pre-Trial Diversion and MH Screening: Kimberly Rawls, DCCJD
Kimberly Rawls reported that Laura Edmonds was unable to attend but provided her report. She reported that the CJD continues to collaborate with NTBHA on the jail releases and in June they facilitated around 30 jail releases. They also continue to engage with the Housing Forward team in identifying their complex needs clients and getting the jail clients connected to housing and support services. ADAPT continues to screen jail inmates for suspected mental health needs and in May they completed 2,495 screenings. Commissioner Daniel also spoke about the homeless report and noted the total number of book-ins are cyclical and have ebbs and flows due to the season changes.

Dallas Connector: Kimberly Rawls, DCCJD
Kimberly Rawls reported that they are transporting their jail releases and it is running smoothly on our end. Ikenna Mogbo stated that it is still running effectively transporting clients to their destinations.

Homeward Bound: Doug Denton, Homeward Bound
Doug Denton stated that the report is in the packet. They had 107 admissions in May and the Dallas Police Department in the South-Central division were the highest referrals. DART continues to send around 20 people a month and after talking with Chief Hargraves, they are their primary "go to" place after hours. The private, philanthropic rapid response team is out trying to stay ahead of DPD's HOT (Housing Outreach Team) in order to mitigate a potential arrest. Homeward Bound is doing several transports a month at the convenience stores to get those individuals to the proper locations. They try to send out teams of 3 professionals to assist, and they have funding for one more year. The program is funded by the Quick Trip Foundation, and they will evaluate the program in September to see if it will be funded for the next year.

Family Housing: Kendall Brown, Family Gateway
Kendall Brown reported that Family Gateway's report is on the last page and they provided program numbers from January-May. By the HUD definition of homelessness, they have identified over 1500 families who meet those requirements. They have also tracked the services they provided for the first five months of the year and have assisted 855 families. Summertime is their busy season as kids are out of school, so they are ramping up their services.

Commissioner Daniel thanked everyone for their work and encouraged the group to keep looking for things that we can do to make an impact.
