Statement from Dallas County Judge Clay Jenkins on Texas Voter Restrictions Getting Closer to Governor Abbott's Desk
Texas House Expected to Vote on Controversial Voting Legislation on Thursday

“This is a sad day for Texas. Our urban and suburban counties are diverse and dynamic. Dallas County has been working hard on innovative methods and other measures to increase participation from our young and diverse electorate. By passing these bills, lawmakers have decided to hamper our efforts to increase participation in our democracy and silence the voices of our residents.

The fight is not over. We will continue to advocate for our residents’ right to have their voices heard at the ballot box and will fight for changes to these voter suppression bills.”
