Hear from CEO Wes Keyes

In May of 2017, Wes Keyes was called to serve as the CEO of Brother Bill's Helping Hand. After two decades of working in Dallas and Oak Cliff, Wes is more passionate than ever about sharing the love of Christ and equipping our neighbors with the resources they need to fight poverty in their community.

Under his leadership, BBHH's work has expanded dramatically. The medical charity clinic now serves more than 1,100 patients annually and has grown into a vital hub for community health, built through partnerships with the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center (UTSW) and many other hospital systems across Dallas. These collaborations provide neighbors with access not only to primary care, but also specialty care, preventative programs, and chronic disease management—ensuring families receive whole-person care close to home.
